

Investment Objective

The objective of the fund is to create long-term wealth for investors by extracting alpha from equity markets.

Fund Profile

The portfolio is managed as a long/short hedge fund, focused on extracting beta and alpha returns from the South African equity market. The funds returns are delivered through fundamental knowledge of South African equities vis-à-vis economic growth and broad economic themes as well as medium to long-term relative valuation opportunities, generating the largest portion of its returns through its directional bias. Relative value pairs, together with absolute longs and shorts seek to stabilize returns in turbulent market conditions, supported by the adjustment to the net exposure.

Market Commentary

Global equity markets performed well during November, led by US equities, as Donald Trump won the US presidential election in a red sweep. Trump's proposals to cut taxes and accelerate corporate deregulation boosted equities. However, his fiscal stance and proposed tariff hikes, as well as planned curbs on immigration, have raised concerns that US inflation may re-emerge, reducing the scope for ongoing Fed rate cuts. As a result, bond yields initially rose while the US dollar appreciated. This, along with underwhelming fiscal support in China, led to underperformance from emerging markets.

The S&P 500 reached an all-time high, aided by resilient economic data and signs that the consumer remains healthy despite softer spending trends. US bond yields fell late in the month as Trump picked Scott Bessent, a well-respected macro hedge fund manager, to become Treasury Secretary, allaying fears around fiscal policy. European bond yields fell sharply as investors anticipated quicker interest rate cuts from the European Central Bank on the back of soft inflation, weak economic data, and political crises in both Germany and France. The euro fell sharply.

Geopolitical tensions remain elevated as Ukraine conducted strikes into Russian territory. A ceasefire between Israel and Hezbollah, however, eased tensions in the Middle East, contributing to a slight decline in oil prices.

In China, bond yields fell along with the RMB, signalling ongoing concerns about growth and the potential impact of tariffs. Early in the month, China announced a package to support local government debt restructuring. While the measures will support activity, the lack of new stimulus has disappointed the market. Economic data has improved on aggregate, but consumer confidence remains depressed.

In South Africa, economic data such as retail sales, vehicle sales, credit growth, and consumer confidence have shown improvement over the past few months. Inflation continued to fall, now below 3%, which allowed the SARB to cut interest rates by another 25 bps to 7.75%. This contributed to local bonds performing well during the month, along with stocks exposed to the South African economy.

Precious metals had their weakest month this year, with Gold down 3.7%, Silver down 6.2%, and Platinum falling 4.5%. Bitcoin surged by 38.5% on Trump euphoria. European natural gas futures rose 17.8% on geopolitical concerns.

In November, SA local equity indices were down, with the Capped Swix falling 0.9%. The ALBI outperformed equities, rallying 3.1%, as the rand weakened 2.5% to R18.09 versus the US dollar. Financials (+0.5%) and industrials (+0.5%) outperformed resources, which fell 6.6%. Key sector leaders were Tobacco (+12.0%) and General Retail (+7.1%), with key performing names including Spar (+13.4%) and Mr Price (+12.5%). Laggards included Precious Metals (-11.1%) and Beverages (-8.2%). MSCI South Africa fell 4.5%, underperforming MSCI World (+4.5%) and MSCI EM (-3.7%) in US dollar terms.

The Fund underperformed its Capped Swix benchmark by 2.5% during November. The largest contributors to outperformance were short positions in the platinum sector (+1.2%) and long positions in discretionary retailers (+0.6%). Long positions in gold equities (-0.8%) and short positions in consumer staple companies (-1%) contributed most to underperformance.
